Terrain description:

The Stenderup forest is situated along the coast of Lillebælt and Kolding Fjord. It is mainly flat, but has steep slopes with contour details towards the coastal line. The vegetation is mainly open deciduous forest - primarily beech wood - with some scattered pine forest. Some undergrowth exists in parts of the forest, however seasonal and less significant in November. The forest has a structured network of vehicle tracks, paths and less clear tracks. A very significant feature for Stenderup is the widespread network of numerous ditches, which in some places are quite detailed. Map updated in 2017.
